Cars in 1966

Safety was the primary concern in 1966 as the industry chalked up its second best sales year ever, topped only by 1965. But with a nationwide death toll of about 1,000 road deaths per week, everyone's focus was on safety. And 1966 was an unparalleled year for safety requirements for car manufacturers. Here's a long list of just some of the new standards for automobiles that were required in 1966 (in no particular order):

1. Auto manufacturers had to notify car buyers of any safety defects or recalls
2. Anchorage for shoulder belts and seats
3. Recessed control knobs
4. Collapsible steering column
5. Safety door latches and hinges
6. Four-way flashers
7. Dual brakes
8. Standard bumper heights
9. Uniform gearshift pattern
10. Safety standards for tires and rims
11. Turn signals visible from the side
12. Rear window defoggers
13. Non-rupturing fuel tanks and pipes

US companies offered 367 basic 1967 models. Most had options. Two major sales themes were sportiness and safety. Ford, with the hugely popular Mustang carrying the load for a couple years, was finally getting some real challengers. One came from within: the Lincoln-Mercury Cougar. Chevrolet released the Camaro and Chrysler-Plymouth beefed up its Barracuda line.

HOW COME IT'S A LUXURY CAR?

Because this new Corvette Sting Ray is both. A natural result of fusing sports car reflexes to luxury car charm. Corvette's roadability stems from an entirely new design concept, never before seen on any American car. What it does for your driving is ego-flattering. And the Corvette's comfort is far more than a couple of extra ashtrays. It's the ultimate luxury of an automobile specifically designed for privacy, unique among American cars. Only the baggage goes in back. Engine choices from 250 to 360 hp* and extra-cost options such as automatic transmission, radio, power steering and power brakes let you get as close to making this a custom-built car as if you'd commissioned it. No need to do that; just see your Chevrolet dealer. *See Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Michigan. *Optional at extra cost

Signs You Should Have Your Brakes Inspected

BTW, we'll check them at NO Cost to you

A properly operating brake system helps ensure safe vehicle control and operation and it should be checked immediately if you suspect any problems, says the non-profit Car Care Council.

"While a semi-annual brake inspection is a good way to ensure brake safety, motorists should NOT ignore signs that their brakes need attention," said Rich White, executive director, Car Care Council. The Car Care Council reminds motorists to look for the following warning signs that your brakes need to be inspected:

- Noise: screeching, grinding or clicking noises when applying the brakes.
- Pulling: vehicle pulls to one side while braking.
- Low Pedal: brake pedal nearly touches the floor before engaging.
- Hard Pedal: must apply extreme pressure to the pedal before brakes engage.
- Grabbing: brakes grab at the slightest touch to the pedal.
- Vibration: brake pedal vibrates or pulses, even under normal braking conditions.
- Light: brake light is illuminated on your vehicle's dashboard.

If you experience any of these symptoms give us a call at 724-222-3077.

Maintaining Your Vehicle Saves You Money and Fuel!

Between inflation and parts shortages, the cost of just about everything has increased, putting a pinch on just about everyone's budget.

A couple of ways to help your budget is by maintaining your vehicle to keep it as fuel efficient (using less gas saving $$) as possible.

Performing manufacturer's recommended maintenance service can help prevent expensive repairs down the road and in most cases keep your vehicle more safe.
